THE SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS IS UNDAUNTED

GOVERNMENT SENDS AID RED CROSS WORKERS THERE

Order Brought Out of Chaos
—Wrecked Buildings Are Removed—School Children
Found Dead Under Walls of School Buildings—It Is Now Feared That the Death
Roll Will Run As High As
100, With 50 Injured—
Property Loss $55,000,000.

To bind up its wounds and rebuild its ruins were the goals toward which St. Louis, stricken by a tornado Thursday which killed 88 and destroyed 5500 homes in a six square mile area strove Friday.

While squads of workmen delved into the wreckage and debris left by the quirk of the elements in search of bodies, a citizens committee laid plans to raise funds for immediate relief and rehabilitation as soon as possible.

Recovery of the fifth body of a little girl from the collapsed walls of central high school raised the total deaths to 88. Searchers were hopeful they would find only a few more. Twenty persons had been reported missing, however.

An inquest to cover the deaths of all the victims was set for Saturday. The coroner's jury expected to hold a perfunctory hearing and return a verdict of accidental deaths.

No plans were made for joint funerals, and it was believed each bereaved family would care for its dead in individual ceremonies, with Sunday a day of funerals and burials.

Excepting for its interest in the slowly mounting death list, downtown St. Louis Friday virtually was without a reminder of the death and desolation within three miles of the business district. Employees' ranks in many concerns were thinned as men remained at home to dig for possessions or to repair damaged dwellings. Otherwist business went along as usual.

Traffic in many quarters continued to be blocked off while rescue parties dug into the maze of fallen bricks, and tangled power wires and uprooted trees.

The stricken area, irregular in shape and of varying width, showed that the tornado in cutting a crescent shaped swath had hopped, skipped and jumped. From Lindell boulevard it hopped some eight blocks to Vandeventer, one of the exclusive residential centers of St. Louis, and thence three blocks to Cook, the center of a large district devoted to homes for Negroes.

In the central west end, the area of chaos extended between Sarah street and Newstead avenue, north from Forest Park avenue, across Laclede avenue, West Pine and Lindell boulevard, widening north of Olive street, and reaching Grand boulevard near Vandeventer. Sarah street continued to be a street of heavy damage as far north as Easton avenue.

Near Fairground park the trend towards the Mississippi river became more direct. Between Fairground park and Merchants Bridge and towards McKinley bridge, a dense path of wreckage extended along North Ninth and adjoining streets.

There were pitiful scenes as housewives, bent as the gleaners, fumbled in the remains of their little home or a full day's labor of tidying up done sat disconsolate on front door steps, pictures of utter dejection amidst the wreckage.

Possibly the saddest story of the disaster was revealed when rescuers delving in the debris of the huge central high school on Grand avenue found the bodies of five little girls. Some of them were pinned down by steel beams and, after hours of digging acetylene torches had to be used before the bodies could be released.

When the school was struck hundreds of children were endangered, but only five lives were lost and 18 children injured. Seven school buildings, with 6500 pupils were in the tornado path.

Thruout the vast area of desolation sightseers thronged Friday viewing the damages and watching the victims work to restore order. Streets already narrowed by fallen walls, uprooted trees, poles and twisted wires were clogged by the visitors' automobiles. Finally they were denounced by Chief of Police Gerk as "sighting mania" and ordered away.

Mayor Victor Miller's appeal for funds for relief met a ready response Friday and $28,000 was available in contributions. Hundreds of homeless were cared for in National Guard armories and fed from field kitchens placed in service by the Red Cross disaster force. Downtown hotels were filled to capacity, in some instances. No demand was made for tents and apparently all the homeless had found temporary roofs.

While St. Louis police force of 1500 men fatigued by 24 and 36 hours of constant duty, relief for them came when 550 soldiers of the Sixth U. S. Infantry were ordered into the district from Jefferson barracks.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires
By Correspondents of the United States Press
Association.

Cleveland—"I bet you a dollar I can shoot your hat off" Patrolman Henry Frischkorn, 26, said to George Reynard, 56, Reynard, willing to be a members in the William Tell stunt stood motionless and told the policeman to "go ahead." The bullet, instead of passing thru Reynard's hat crashed into his skull at the base of his brain.

The trip was made by auto and David remained at Lovejoy, Montana, where he is employed by Harness Renick, who is engaged in the hay business. To Restore Faded Ink

When the ink of old documents has faded and it is desired to restore it this can be done by washing with any of the substances that blacken on mixing with iron—infusion of nutgalls, sodium-sulphide or acetic ferrocyanide of potassium, for instance.

STEERING GEAR BREAK CAUSES BAD ACCIDENT

On Adelphi Pike Friday Evening—Four Children of
S. R. Pace Injured.

Four children of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Pace, connected with the Chesapeake & Hocking railroad company in the capacity of foreman, were injured Friday evening when the Dodge sedan in which they were riding, hit a bunch of fresh gravel on the Adelphi pike. The car skidded, upset and rolled over and over.

In the machine were Miss Maggie Pace, who was at the wheel and Mary, Mamie, Robert and Paul Pace. The accident happened at the Earnhart hill. The injured were brought to the office of Dr. G. W. Heffner where their wounds received surgical attention.

The baby, Paul, four years of age, received the severest wounds. A cut extended from the forehead clear down the left side of his face, running under his jaw and another across the back of his hand, evidently caused by broken glass. The child had to be pulled from under the machine. His brothers and sisters escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

The wrecked car, which did not contain a whole piece of glass after the accident, was towed in by the Circleville Motors company for repairs.

The family lives at 548 East Main street.

Plant That Coughs

Botanists have records of carnivorous plants which eat even mice; there are laughing and weeping flowers; and now, according to the Journal de la Sante, there is in the tropics a "coughing plant." Its fruit is like the common bean. It is easily aroused to anger, and what is more strange, has a horror of all kinds of dust. As soon as a few grains fall on the leaves the stomates or air cells, which are the breathing organs, fill with gas, puff out and throw off the dust with slight explosions like the cough of a child.

Have Short Lives

There are many eggs of small insects that are hatching all the time. The ray of sunshine, falling weakly upon the side of a tree or upon an old log, will hatch out many of these eggs, and the little creatures wobble through a frozen air for a few minutes before perishing. Possibly it is a tragedy with them when they are brought into the world too soon. At any rate they do not flourish; they do not mate and propagate their kind when hatched out in winter.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mrs. Henry Mader and her mother, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, were entertained to a luncheon Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Erdmand, at Chillicothe.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Van Riper entertained Thursday evening with a dinner in honor of Mrs. Van Riper's birthday anniversary and honoring their guest, Mrs. Veta Kinnamon, of London. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Avery Purcell, Mrs. Christy Voll, of this city; Mrs. Kinner, of Columbus; Mrs. Kinnamon and the host and hostess.

DEPUTY MARSHAL

Miss Noelle Loisel, twenty-one, who has been named deputy United States marshal for the east district of Louisiana by United States Attorney General Sargent. She packs a Colt automatic when on duty. Miss Loisel says she is not looking for thrills, and hopes she won't have to use the gun.

Sound Taveled Far

The greatest distance at which thunder can be heard is 14 to 18 miles, but it is not generally heard at a greater distance than nine miles. In the World war, the shell and bomb explosions, and the noise of the 15-inch guns of the Germans and the allies in France were heard in the eastern part of England, at distances up to 150 miles.

Progressing

Daughter was at home from college for the week-end. She seems unchanged, except that she has learned to say: "Is that he?" Before she went away she said: "Is that him?"

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL ON LOCAL FIELD

Circleville Boys Won Over
Walnut By a One-sided
Score of 50 to 7.

The first football game of the season was played Friday, between Circleville high school and Walnut town ship high school on Circleville's athletic field.

As the one sided score, 50 to 7, indicates, it was a game between a smaller school with an inferiority complex, against a larger school with good material and splendid training.

The C. H. S. Tigers came onto the field, wearing their new red jerseys, and looking quite nifty and plenty big. Their afternoon's performance gave promise of a very successful team for this year.

The scoring started after four minutes of play. When Davis made a touchdown after an unmoisted march down the field. Then Dumm duplicated the same play and the score was 12 to 0. Walnut seemed to lack a lot of confidence, and the their backfield was fast, they never had a chance to get started. When Peters of Circleville started his parades down the field, half of Walnut seemed to get on and ride. He also tossed some beautiful passes to Davis, which helped roll up the score.

Bales at right half did some neat slithering thru the ranks, and McCrady was there with excellent tackling.

In the last quarter, Walnut pulled a stunt the kind that has wrecked many a championship. Halfback Hartman snatched a forward pass on to himself on the three yard line, and ran the length of the field for a touchdown and Campbell kicked goal. Bales and Dumm each made one more touchdown for their side, and an adding machine was brought on the field to add up the score.

HAROLD EBERT FORMER COACH C. A. C. DEAD

Passed Away At Des Moines,
Iowa—Funeral Services
Monday Afternoon.

Harold Ebert, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Ebert, of Ashville, died at a hospital in Des Moines, Iowa, Friday at 12:30 o'clock following a lingering illness.

The deceased was born in Ashville in 1898. After attending and graduating from Ohio university at Athens he took up athletic work, and for several seasons was coach for the basketball team of this city and also coached several college teams. He was connected with Drake university at Des Moines, Iowa, as coach when he passed away.

The remains will be brought to Ashville and will be removed to the home of his uncle, David H. Ebert. Services at the Lutheran church Ashville Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial in Reber Hill cemetery.

The deceased was a nephew of Fred J. Ebert and Mrs. Edward Crist and Miss Mattie Ebert, of North Court street, this city.

Havoc of Education

I am against all education. It makes women conceited and unkind. And it makes men dull and pedantic.—Fredrick Harrison in 1904 to Lady Dorothy Nevill.

Base Metals and Gold

The idea of transmuting base metals into gold seems to have had its origin, long before the birth of Christ, in Arabia, where the study of chemistry was remarkably advanced in early days. Lead has been nearly always the metal chosen—as recently, by a professor of the University of Manchester—to be dealt with in this way. Mercury is the next best bet, but silver is highly recommended.

Men's Rights

Men's rights are a great deal of trouble to them. They assert them, and get them, and then they don't know what to do with them. A man's rights, half of them, are meant to give away. . . . The beatitude of your rights is, they are your benevolences. You can yield them, give them away. And the law of social unity is the law of assertion of a man's individuality as a benevolence for those that are round about him.—Henry Ward Beecher.

EQUINOXIAL TIME

This is the time of year when the days and nights are of equal length—the equinoxial period we call it.

Those periods come twice a year, one in the spring and one in the autumn and are usually accompanied by storms or extraordinary atmospheric disturbances and, consequently, we are looking for storms now.

The time of violent and sudden electric storms and cyclones and tornadoes is about over, in this section, at least for this year, but storm means in the scientist's dictionary, any unusual weather conditions. In certain localities the autumnal equinox is marked very frequently, by violent hurricanes and terrific electric storms, but in these localities more by heavy rainfall, usually cold and of long duration. The spring equinox very frequently brings us more violent disturbances because then we are approaching the season of storms, while in the autumn we are leaving them behind.

Nature's forces, as a rule, shift gears on the weather machine at the equinoxial periods and they frequently "scrape" considerably in getting from one season's speed to another.

We have more settled weather, speaking generally, after these equinoxial storm periods are passed. After the autumnal equinox we are scheduled to have our squaw winter and our Indian summer weather, the latter the most delightful and dependable weather in the whole year.—Washington C. H. Herald.

ATTORNEY

And Engineer Chosen to Represent City in Fight Against Citizens Telephone Co.'s Rate Increase.

At the meeting of Council last night Solicitor Weldon announced that he had appointed Beecher W. Waltermire, attorney at law, to represent the city in their objection to the increase of rates asked for by the Citizens Telephone Company, which appointment was confirmed by Council, as was also the appointment of Beeman Thomas, appraisal engineer to assist in the work.

Solicitor Weldon was requested to notify the Norfolk & Western Railway Company that the city was satisfied with the way said company had repaired their crossing at the intersection of Court and Huston streets.

Service Director Schneider reported to Council that the Chesapeake and Hocking Railroad Company is now paving Main street between their right of way and the river bridge and that said company was willing to pave Mound street at this time if the city Council is willing to have the work done now. This matter was left to the discretion of the Service Director and City Engineer.

FOLKSBURG ITEMS

It's Indian summer time in Folksburg, and you can go up to any high place now and look a long ways off thru the fall sunshine and see a rim of smoky hills that seems like they're riding something from you that's further on. The corn on the ridges is in the shock and the woods on the hillsides are all splashes of color. Even the crickets are chirping sort of mournful, like as if they're telling you that summer is over, and frosty nights are close at hand.

Jud Johnson has had to repaint the sign which has been in his front yard for two or three years, and which until the paint washed off, it said he had a cow and calf for sale. And it's been such a slow sale the sign now reads that he has two cows to sell.

Attorney Parks is to be the main speaker at some kind of a gathering over at Newport next Friday night, and is making extensive preparations for the same. He is particularly practicing on several local take-offs that he aims to make, and wants to act like they just came to him on the spur of the minute.

Mrs. Millie Hicks was up at the city last week visiting her married daughter. And while she was there her son-in-law took her around to see where he works so she could tell the people here what an important place he has. But it being Sunday, the watchman wouldn't let them in on account of not recognizing the name as anybody that worked there.

Will Deal, one of our realtors, got a considerable surprise the other day. And how it was he sold a lot to Eli Howard nearly a year ago, and now Eli has succeeded in selling it for over half as much as Will told him it would soon be worth.

Mrs. Milton Hall was visited for a few days last week by two of her cousins from the city. Knowing that they ranked tolerably high in the social order, she extended herself trying to entertain them on an elaborate scale. And she didn't hardly know what to think when they wrote back thanking her kindly, and saying they enjoyed themselves so much more than if she had gone to special trouble.

Turner Jones, one of our stock buyers, was talking recently that all of these radio sets which people are getting have made it mighty discouraging for a stock buyer. And the reason is that he has a hard time to get to anybody now before they've heard that the price of hogs has gone up.

Mrs. Hettie Thomas and Elmira Peek have been in some competition over which one of them would get to rent their spare bedroom to school teachers who have come in from the outside. But Mrs. Thomas finally won out on account of her room had the biggest looking glass.

It looks like Sidney Moon's bull dog is becoming more valuable to him all the time. As for instance, yesterday morning Sidney went out to the garage in a hurry and got in his machine to drive off, and the dog was there and started to raise such a commotion that Sidney investigated a little, and found that he had a flat tire.

As we stated previously, Mrs. Amanda Bell has been a little perplexed whether to give some of her old things to a rummage sale for her church, or sell them to the second-hand store and maybe buy herself a new dress. But she got to looking a long ways ahead and thinking that a hundred years from now she'd probably be benefitting more if she donated the things to the sale, which she did.

Miss Mellie Robbins got a letter yesterday from somebody who wasn't busy right then and thought he'd write to her. And after he started out that way, why Miss Robbins said she was too busy herself to read any further.

Sandy Atkins has been showing several people a patent lock which he has put on his flivver. And seems like the general opinion is that it was an unnecessary expense.

RECREATION

BALL GAME AT LANCASTER

Recreation ball was played on the Lancaster field Friday by the Rotarians of this city and Lancaster and it was the same old story, Lancaster won again, 31 to 18. This score was official.

The game played here several weeks ago was a humdinger, but the game played Friday at Lancaster was not so peppy. The stars of the local rotarians were Stanley Lewis, of the Farm bureau, and Paul Johnson, of the Circleville Watchman. Both made home runs and the last named made two. Runs were made by Lewis 2; Mitchell 2; J. C. Goeller Jr., 2; Ed Daley 1; Gilmore 1; Earl Lutz 2; Loren Lutz, 2; Karl Herrman 2; Johnson, 2; Wills, 2.

Home run John and Lewis are some batters and they saved the day. The flowery Jack Mitchell is some batter and the way he knocked the sphere around was a caution. He was the wonder of the Lancasterians.

The Lutz boys, father and son, surely can make hits and runs and they did not do half bad as third basemen and left fielders. Dad is as good as the kid when it comes to running bases.

John C. Goeller Jr., got the wind knocked out of his anatomy when one of the Lancaster boys tried to make first, he ran into Goeller and knocked him off his pins for a minute, but he was game and stayed in the play.

Charley Gilmore enters into the game with heart and soul and as second baseman he did yeoman work. Karl Hermann is a superb center-fielder. He could, if he cared get a tryout with one of the major leagues but he is married now.

Ed Daley made some raw decision as an umpire and after Stanley Lewis had to leave they took him off and let him play shortstop. As he was sprinter he is a pronounced success.

A supper was given the visiting so long he got in one run. As a Rotarians at Reef's, the headquarters of the Kiwanis, and following the banquet, Charles Gilmore, proposed that a league of recreation ball players made up of Lancaster, Logan, Chillicothe, Washington C. H., and this city, of Rotarians players and that next season each city play two games. Circleville also challenged Lancaster to an indoor game at Circleville.

After some consideration, it was decided that volley ball would be a better game to play for the indoors, and this may get the attention of players this coming winter.

Herman Balthaser, of the Lancaster Rotarians, was heartily in favor of volley ball, which he said is a good game for indoors.

Ahead of Engagements

Mary, who is the baby sister of girls in college, looks forward with delight to their week-end visits home and devotes herself entirely to them at such times. Recently, her sister noticed that as Mary knelt to say her little prayer she hurried through it, then began again and so on until she had repeated it almost breathlessly four times. Finally she rose and exclaimed: 'Now I am prayed up for four nights and we can visit.'

Keeps Cattle Away

Cattle will not allow young hazel, oak and most other trees and shrubs to survive in a pasture, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington, but the thorn-apple bushes will flourish because their sharp thorns keep away the browsing cattle.

This Hustling Age

Of course we are all the creatures of our age. The luxuries of yesterday become the needs of today. If we were suddenly transported into the days of our grandparents, we would find the manner of life unbearable. They traveled by stage or on foot, and arrived on time. Today the fastest express trains scarcely meet our needs, and we are continually seeking for faster means of transportation and communication.

Have Same Speech

The old Gaelic or Celtic languages of the people of Scotland and Ireland are still spoken in place of English in the south and west of Scotland, in parts of Wales and other places, but the great majority of the people of both Scotland and Ireland speak English. They have their variations of speech, due to brogue or dialect, just as different sections of England and America have, but in all essentials their language is ours.

RODEO WILL SHOW AGAIN TWO NIGHTS

King Bros. wild west rodeo has been induced by the local lodge of Eagles to extend its engagement and instead of closing tonight will remain on Mason's show grounds Monday and Tuesday of next week. When this announcement was made at last night's performance the hundreds of people in the audience applauded generously.

The rodeo with its 65 horses, its herd of long horned Texas steers and its splendid cowboys and cowgirls has made a decided hit in Circleville. The show is good and thrilling and decidedly wholesome. It is really a wonderful exhibition of western sports; just as good, if not better, lot of folks say, than the rodeo that was given at the state fair in Columbus.

A matinee was given this afternoon. Tonight at 8:30 another performance will be given. Circleville folks are given a cordial invitation by Colonel King to visit the grounds Sunday afternoon and see the horses and cattle and meet personally the picturesque cowboys and charming cowgirls.

Benefit in Joy Giving

When you once get started in joy giving, it's easy to keep it up. The fact that you give joy, brings candidates for your magic touch constantly before you. The returning benefits of having given joy keep you supplied with the means of joy giving. So you just increase the ever enlarging stream that through you ministers to your fellows. And your own joy increases with each new expression of your good will. The joy-giving habit grows upon you and you would be perfectly miserable without the chance of helping others to happier days. It's real joy.—Grit.

BLACKSTONE.

The greatest magician the world has ever known will make an escape from a packing box made by the Circleville Lumber company and then nailed down by their carpenters at the Grand opera house Wednesday, October 5, and Mr. Gilliland defies Blackstone to escape from same after his men has made this box secure. Same is now on exhibition at the Ohio utilities office and may be examined at your leisure. This is just one of the many tricks that the Great Black stone will perform during his three day engagement in this city. Don't fail to see the great illusion "The Vanishing Horse" in the Oriental Nights and the many other mystifying tricks, with his big company of twenty people and a car load of special scenery and effects; October 3, 4, and 5.

AMUSEMENTS

Duplicating Chinese architecture, Chinese decorations, and other details of creating an exact duplicate of the mysterious Orient proved one of the strangest tasks of research ever encountered at a studio, when the spectacular settings for "Mr. Wu," Lon Chaney's new starring vehicle coming Monday to the Met theater were created.

The experts in charge of the work before they could study Chinese architecture, had to study Chinese religion. This was necessary because every detail of Chinese building design hinges on the religion and superstitions of its people.

All architecture in China is on a triangular basis, representing the trinity of the Chinese religion, and the dragon, symbol of immortality, reaching toward the earth, is the basic principle of its decoration.

Chinese roofs always curl up at the eaves, that descending evil spirits may be caught on these chutes and turned upward into the air again. Strange walls, known as "spirit walls" are built on a certain formula to foil evil spirits.

William Nigh, who directed the new production at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and Chaney, the star, passed weeks in research with the technical department before the settings were constructed, and much of Chaney's delineation of the uncanny Chinese avenger in the dramatic story was gleaned from the same story.

Chaney plays a powerful mandarin of uncanny knowledge and power and the cast includes Louise Dresser, Renee Adoree, Ralph Forbes, Gertrude Olmsted, Anna May Wong, Mrs. Wong Wing, Holmes Herbert, Claude King and other noted players.

Had Him Sized Up

The beginning of the last chapter of the division of the lands owned by the late Job E. Stevenson in Ross and Pickaway Counties as started last week when Lyle S. Evans, of Chillicothe, attorney for certain parties connected with the grand slicing of the large land estate.

The late Job Stevenson, who was married several times, and had a daughter who married the late Geo. W. Cable, author and writer of southern novels, and who is now deceased. Mrs. Cable being his second wife, left a large estate in Ohio lands and are now partitioned in accordance with the finding of the court, so that Geo. W. SAHARA BLONDE RULES IN HAREM

Sheik Still Prefers Bride He Won at Cards Over 300 Brunettes.

Paris.—A bronzed sheik of the Sahara, who slipped into Paris to do a bit of shopping for his harem, recalled a choice bit of exotic romance.

A year or two before the big war El Glaoui, pasha of Marrakech in Morocco, came up to Vichy for a rest and met a rich Turk who proved to be an inveterate gambler. In three days El Glaoui cleaned out his co-religionist from Constantinople, down to his last piastre.

"I am sorry, my brother, but I have nothing more to play," the Turk exclaimed in despair.

"You have forgotten something, my friend," El Glaoui cooed, and his deep brown eyes sparkled as he pictured in his mind the Turk's young Circassian wife with blond hair and blue eyes who had thrown languorous glances at him through the slit in her tcharchaf when he had gotten a passing glimpse of her that morning.

One Look Won the Pasha's Heart. The Circassian's glance had set him on fire, as the Moroccan sheiks love the blond Mohammedan women from the Caucasus even more than do the Turks, and he was ready to sell his soul for her.

"I shall give you a chance to win all your money back," he whispered to the Constantinople brother, pushing $100,000 in golden Turkish pounds on the table. I shall bet it all on one cut of the cards against your wife!"

The fat Turk was too passionate a gambler to resist, and with huge drops of perspiration rolling off his forehead, he drew a card:

"The three of spades," he gasped and the sheik smiled craftily.

El Glaoui, as cool as an oasis on his Sahara, drew his card.

"The ace of clubs," the Turk choked, and then he burst into sobs.

He sobbed so long and so bitterly that El Glaoui, who is quite a diplomat in his own way, found it almost impossible to console him.

She Chose the Winner.

"It was the will of Allah, my friend," he explained encouragingly, "but I shall fly in the face of Providence and give you another chance. We shall call your wife, explain the circumstances and tell her to choose between us. If she prefers to remain with you I shall give you both my blessing and go on my way. And if she prefers to go with me!"

The young Circassian beauty took only one look at her fat, greasy, busted and red-eyed husband and ten looks at the tall, masterful Moroccan sheik, holding the sack of gold. She blushing made a curtsy to the Pasha, stepped beside him and they walked out together.

"The peace of God be with you, friend," he said gravely to the Turk. "Peace with you," his ex-wife echoed.

The blonde knew her stuff, for she is still No. 1 wife in a harem of 300 brunettes, and that is going some after 14 years.

The Pasha comes up to Paris every summer to buy her silks and perfumes.

POLITICS AND STATISTICS

If anyone is disposed to suggest that that eminent statistician Mr. Babson, is going out of his field when he predicts that next year we shall see the election of a Republican President, but a Democratic Congress, and in 1932 of a Democratic President, it is only necessary to reply that, after all, the determination of an election is nothing but a matter of statistics anyway—merely counting the votes after they have been cast. The only novelty which Mr. Babson introduces into the affair, from the more usual viewpoint of his profession, is that of counting the votes beforehand.

In time we may reach the stage—perhaps, with due respect to Mr. Babson, we have reached it already—when we can thus plot our politics and when, if one curve representing the relative prosperity of the Western farmer happens to cross, at an appropriate time, another curve representing the intensity of the hunger pains of the Democrats who have been so long out of office, we may be sure that we are going to have a Democratic President—or that we aren't.—Springfield Republican.

Needles of Ancient Days

The needles that have come down to us from ancient Egypt are very coarse, but it is certain that finer needles must have been made to make the delicate embroidery produced by those people. Judging by the descriptions of embroidery in Homer, the Greeks also must have had very fine needles.

Two Church Designations

The word "protestant" includes many churches, the Protestant Episcopal and the Methodist Episcopal among them. The word "protestant" came into use at the time of the Reformation both in England and on the continent. It stood for a protest against the Roman Catholic church. The name is not particularly significant at this time when all of the churches are drawing closer together. —Brooklyn Eagle.

Vera Cruz

Vera Cruz has the unique record of having been twice captured by American forces, once in 1846 when we were at war with Mexico, and again in 1917, when we were not at war with Mexico. However, all we seem to do with it after we got it is to give it back again, so its citizens probably feel little worried at the vicissitudes of war. Indeed, they have recently raised a statue in honor of the noble defenders of Vera Cruz against the gringos, which shows that they feel they are adequately protected.

Onion Temperatures While in Storage

Bulb Is Subject to Freezing Injury in Transit.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Onions, one of the leading vegetable crops commonly held in storage, may under certain conditions undergo cool for a limited period below their freezing points without freezing, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Experiments conducted by the department at its cold storage laboratory at the Arlington Experimental Farm, Rosslyn, Va., show that the average freezing point of onions of the globe type is about 30 degrees F. When known to be at a temperature below their freezing point onions should not be moved or handled roughly as they are likely to freeze immediately. The freezing points and other temperature records were determined by the thermoelectric method. The study was confined to non-hern-grown onions of the globe type, since the larger proportion of this crop is held in common storage in the northern states and therefore is frequently subject to freezing injury while in storage and in transit to market. Considerable variation was found among individual onions relative to the temperature to which they may be undercooled before freezing starts. One of the experiments was made to determine the length of time a bushel slat crate of onions could be held at low temperatures without injury.

Details concerning the tests and their results are given in Department Circular No. 415-C, "Some Effects of Freezing on Onions," just issued by the department. A copy of the new circular may be obtained free upon application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Rake Up and Burn All Rubbish in Onion Patch

Raking up and burning all rubbish in the onion patch or garden at this time of year is more important in insect control than any single measure that may be taken next spring or next summer, says F. E. Whitehead, entomologist of the Idaho university extension service.

"If weather conditions permit," Mr. Whitehead says, "this should be done at once. Rake up and burn rubbish of every variety, burn all weeds along fence rows and leave no place for the overwintering insects to live. The success of this method, like the success of other methods of insect control, depends upon thoroughness. The cleanup campaign should be as thorough as possible.

This practice is particularly important this year to growers of onions, according to Mr. Whitehead. Onion thrips have been doing damage to the Idaho crops for several years and have become steadily worse.

Most Effective Means to Control Corn Borer

One of the most effective means thus far discovered of controlling the spread of the European corn borer is to destroy the corn stalks and those of other plants in which the borers hibernate before emerging in the spring as moths. It is very necessary, however, to cut the stalks as close to the ground as possible, for it has been determined that as cool fall weather sets in the borers travel downward in the stalks. It is necessary also to cut the stalks as early as possible in order to capture most of the borers in the cut stalks and then kill them by ensiling, shredding the ears and stalks or burning the stalks.

Supreme as Soiling Crop

Among the various soiling crops, alfalfa stands supreme. If managed rightly, it will provide large yields of rich succulent feed throughout the entire summer. The first cutting is usually ready by late May or early June and, as a rule, at least three more cuttings can be secured at intervals of four to six weeks. Lyons and Haker of the Nebraska station found that they got double the yield from alfalfa as a soiling crop over that secured when it was pastured.

Agricultural Notes

Many a dollar is lost in the scrap heap of uncared for farm machinery.

Disking behind the binder saves moisture and makes fall plowing easier.

Farmers cannot afford to waste the farm manure by-product and then purchase commercial fertilizers.

Keep down the weeds in the garden. They steal moisture from the vegetables and harbor insect pests.

Some of our wheat fields have suffered considerably from smut this year because the seed was not treated or disinfected last fall.

There are still some farmers who do not appreciate that stinking smut or bunt of wheat can be controlled by disinfecting the seed with formalin.

The farmer who pulls fodder for roughage is making his hands compete with the mowing machine. If the machine cuts legume hays, it is saving a much better roughage than that of fodder which is harvested by hand.

All in Green Gowns

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

"AND so you are wearing green?" remarked Ella Neilson as she looked at Kathleen's new dress for the party.

"Yes, you know it is my favorite color—perhaps I rather fancy it because my eyes are green."

"Are they green?" inquired her friend coolly. "I always thought they were grayish blue."

"No, indeed," laughed the other girl. "Mother has bought me a string of jade green beads—pretty, aren't they?"

"Lovely," murmured Ella indifferently, and presently she made some excuse and hurried on, but she did not go home then. She went to call upon several other girls of their set, and there was much laughter and giggling.

As for Kathleen, while she felt hurt about Ella Neilson's indifference, she did diagnose the case correctly. "I am afraid that Ella is a little jealous about my wearing the green dress," she told her mother that evening.

"You must not mind that, my dear," smiled her mother. "I am sure that Ella will wear a pretty frock and by that time she will have quite forgotten her jealousy. Did she ask you anything about Frederick?"

Kathleen shook her head. "I think that she was so upset about my dress that she never thought of my escort!" "And she will take it for granted that Frederick will take her, as usual?"

"I suppose so, mother. I hope she finds it out before Thursday, though."

Ella Neilson did find it out on Wednesday and she was furiously angry with both Frederick and Kathleen. She had met the young man near the town hall and she made the fatal mistake of taking it for granted that Frederick would be her cavalier as he had been several times in the past.

"What time will you come for me, Fred?" she asked when they were parting, and he had not mentioned the party.

"Ella Neilson!" he chided, trying to hide his embarrassment, "you know perfectly well that I am not coming to escort you to the party! Please do not tease a young man with political cares upon his shoulders!"

Ella smiled widely, nervously, and turned away. "That's a good joke on you, Frederick!" she giggled, and went on, and Frederick, guessing her chagrin, and feeling somewhat guilty, went on his way, and in the midst of an important piece of work forgot all about Ella Neilson, though he did have a minute now and then to devote to Kathleen, who had quite stolen his heart.

That afternoon Ella Neilson called up several of her masculine friends at their places of business, and after several failures at last received an invitation from George Moore. "I am going in my car," he said, "and I'd like to take you. Ella—sure that I'm not butting in on Fred—or anything like that?"

"Very sure," said Ella sweetly, "and thank you so much, George. I will be ready at eight o'clock."

One of the queer things about the party that night was that eight o'clock sounded and went by and very few girls arrived.

There was the usual stag line of unattached young men, and there were some girls and their escorts. Pretty girls and plain girls in pink and yellow and blue and a few in white or black.

At a quarter after eight Ella Neilson arrived with George Moore, and she looked like a rose in a charming pink dress, and then in groups or by ones and twos came the other girls of her particular "crowd" and every girl wore green! Every shade of green, silk, satin, or georgette in combination with another color was represented, and there was much laughter, while Ella Neilson was here, there, and everywhere in her rose-pink dress, like one lovely rose in a plain green garden of girls!

And then, just a little later, came Kathleen with Frederick Warner—Kathleen was all in green, too, but her dress was somehow "different" from the others—it was a beautiful shade of green, and she wore an odd string of jade beads.

"How odd that so many should wear green!" she confided to Fred as they danced. "Of course it is worn a lot—but our whole crowd is wearing green, all except Ella. Doesn't she look adorable in the pink?"

Frederick had keenly observed Ella Neilson, but he merely said: "Looks like a peony! Kathleen, you are like a cool green rush growing in a quiet pool."

Kathleen blushed adorably and smiled at him. "There are so many of us green rushes, Frederick—I am afraid we are like the wild flags in the creeks!"

"Never mind," he only whispered.

"Among them all, Kathy, there is just one green. You!"

When the evening was over, and Frederick and Kathleen walked home under the early morning moon, it was then that Frederick confessed to Kathleen that he did not like any other girl except her—and he came out in just the way that all happily ending love stories do! As for Ella Neilson—it was something of a tragedy for her when she fell in love and married a man by the name of Green!

TEMPERANCE WOMEN HELD CONVENTION

County Organizations Met In This City and Interesting Program Was Given.

The thirty-seventh annual convention of the Pickaway county W. C. T. U., was held in the Methodist Episcopal church in Circleville.

Mrs. Lucy B. Price, our very efficient county president, presided and the following program was carried out: Song service was conducted by the county director, Mrs. Alma Boor; greetings by Mrs. Lulu Marion, president of Circleville union; Miss Hazel F. Morgan responded.

Fifteen members in the county have entered eternal rest during the year.

Miss Mary Porter gave glimpses of the National convention and everyone voted this a fine report.

Mrs. H. D. VanKirk then gave a splendid address. She urged every woman to deem it her duty to go to the polls and vote. Let us educate our children thru S. T. I work so they may know how to vote. The pupils of today are the voters of tomorrow. Thus closed a very profitable convention with the largest attendance of any convention in the past. Every woman should make an effort to attend the county conventions and institute for they are a real inspiration.

The ladies of the county presented their president, Mrs. Lucy B. Price, a beautiful silver tray as a token of the love and esteem in which she is held by the W. C. T. U. women of the county. The convention closed by singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

THE SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS IS UNDAUNTED

GOVERNMENT SENDS AID RED CROSS WORKERS THERE

Order Brought Out of Chaos—Wrecked Buildings Are Removed—School Children Found Dead Under Walls of School Buildings—It Is Now Feared That the Death Roll Will Run As High As 100, With 50 Injured—Property Loss $55,000,000.

To bind up its wounds and rebuild its ruins were the goals toward which St. Louis, stricken by a tornado Thursday which killed 88 and destroyed 5500 homes in a six square mile area strove Friday.

While squads of workmen delved into the wreckage and debris left by the quirk of the elements in search of bodies, a citizens committee laid plans to raise funds for immediate relief and rehabilitation as soon as possible.

Recovery of the fifth body of a little girl from the collapsed walls of central high school raised the total deaths to 88. Searchers were hopeful they would find only a few more. Twenty persons had been reported missing, however.

An inquest to cover the deaths of all the victims was set for Saturday. The coroner's jury expected to hold a perfunctory hearing and return a verdict of accidental deaths.

No plans were made for joint funerals, and it was believed each bereaved family would care for its dead in individual ceremonies, with Sunday a day of funerals and burials.

Excepting for its interest in the slowly mounting death list, downtown St. Louis Friday virtually was without a reminder of the death and desolation within three miles of the business district. Employees' ranks in many concerns were thinned as men remained at home to dig for possessions or to repair damaged dwellings. Other business went along as usual.

Traffic in many quarters continued to be blocked off while rescue parties dug into the maze of fallen bricks, and tangled power wires and uprooted trees.

The stricken area, irregular in shape and of varying width, showed that the tornado in cutting a crescent shaped swath had hopped, skipped and jumped. From Lindell boulevard it hopped some eight blocks to Vandeventer, one of the exclusive residential centers of St. Louis, and thence three blocks to Cook, the center of a large district devoted to homes for Negroes.

In the central west end, the area of chaos extended between Sarah street and Newstead avenue, north from Forest Park avenue, across Laclede avenue, West Pine and Lindell boulevard, widening north of Olive street, and reaching Grand boulevard near Vandeventer. Sarah street continued to be a street of heavy damage as far north as Easton avenue.

Near Fairground park the trend towards the Mississippi river became more direct. Between Fairground park and Merchants Bridge and towards McKinley bridge, a dense path of wreckage extended along North Ninth and adjoining streets.

There were pitiful scenes as housewives, bent as the gleaners, fumbled in the remains of their little home or a full day's labor of tidying up done sat disconsolate on front door steps, pictures of utter dejection amidst the wreckage.

Possibly the saddest story of the disaster was revealed when rescuers delving in the debris of the huge central high school on Grand avenue found the bodies of five little girls. Some of them were pinned down by steel beams and, after hours of digging acetylene torches had to be used before the bodies could be released.

When the school was struck hundreds of children were endangered, but only five lives were lost and 18 children injured. Seven school buildings, with 6500 pupils were in the tornado path.

Thruout the vast area of desolation sightseers thronged Friday viewing the damages and watching the victims work to restore order. Streets already narrowed by fallen walls, uprooted trees, poles and twisted wires were clogged by the visitors' automobiles. Finally they were denounced by Chief of Police Gerk as "sight-seeing maniacs" and ordered away.

Mayor Victor Miller's appeal for funds for relief met a ready response Friday and $28,000 was available in contributions. Hundreds of homeless were cared for in National Guard armories and fed from field kitchens placed in service by the Red Cross disaster force. Downtown hotels were filled to capacity, in some instances. No demand was made for tents and apparently all the homeless had found temporary roofs.

While St. Louis police force of 1500 men fatigued by 24 and 36 hours of constant duty, relief for them came when 550 soldiers of the Sixth U. S. Infantry were ordered into the district from Jefferson barracks.

STEERING GEAR BREAK CAUSES BAD ACCIDENT

On Adelphi Pike Friday Evening—Four Children of
S. R. Pace Injured.

Four children of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Pace, connected with the Chesapeake & Hocking railroad company in the capacity of foreman, were injured Friday evening when the Dodge sedan in which they were riding, hit a bunch of fresh gravel on the Adelphi pike. The car skidded, upset and rolled over and over.

In the machine were Miss Maggie Pace, who was at the wheel and Mary, Mamie, Robert and Paul Pace. The accident happened at the Earnhart hill. The injured were brought to the office of Dr. G. W. Heffner where their wounds received surgical attention.

The baby, Paul, four years of age, received the severest wounds. A cut extended from the forehead clear down the left side of his face, running under his jaw and another across the back of his hand, evidently caused by broken glass. The child had to be pulled from under the machine. His brothers and sisters escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

The wrecked car, which did not contain a whole piece of glass after the accident, was towed in by the Circleville Motors company for repairs.

The family lives at 548 East Main street.

Plant That Coughs

Botanists have records of carnivorous plants which eat even mice; there are laughing and weeping flowers; and now, according to the Journal de la Sante, there is in the tropics a "coughing plant." Its fruit is like the common bean. It is easily aroused to anger, and what is more strange, has a horror of all kinds of dust. As soon as a few grains fall on the leaves the stomates or air cells, which are the breathing organs, fill with gas, puff out and throw off the dust with slight explosions like the cough of a child.

Have Short Lives

There are many eggs of small insects that are hatching all the time. The ray of sunshine, falling weakly upon the side of a tree or upon an old log, will hatch out many of these eggs, and the little creatures wobble through a frozen air for a few minutes before perishing. Possibly it is a tragedy with them when they are brought into the world too soon. At any rate they do not flourish; they do not mate and propagate their kind when hatched out in winter.

Mrs. Henry Mader and her mother, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, were entertained to a luncheon Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Erdmand, at Chillicothe.

Sound Taveled Far

The greatest distance at which thunder can be heard is 14 to 18 miles, but it is not generally heard at a greater distance than nine miles. In the World war, the shell and bomb explosions, and the noise of the 15-inch guns of the Germans and the allies in France were heard in the eastern part of England, at distances up to 150 miles.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL ON LOCAL FIELD

Circleville Boys Won Over
Walnut By a One-sided
Score of 50 to 7.

The first football game of the season was played Friday, between Circleville high school and Walnut town ship high school on Circleville's athletic field.

As the one sided score, 50 to 7, indicates, it was a game between a smaller school with an inferiority complex, against a larger school with good material and splendid training.

The C. H. S. Tigers came onto the field, wearing their new red jerseys, and looking quite nifty and plenty big. Their afternoon's performance gave promise of a very successful team for this year.

The scoring started after four minutes of play. When Davis made a touchdown after an unmolested march down the field. Then Dumm duplicated the same play and the score was 12 to 0. Walnut seemed to lack a lot of confidence, and tho their backfield was fast, they never had a chance to get started. When Peters of Circleville started his parades down the field, half of Walnut seemed to get on and ride. He also tossed some beautiful passes to Davis, which helped roll up the score.

Bales at right half did some neat slithering thru the ranks, and McCrady was there with excellent tackling.

In the last quarter, Walnut pulled a stunt the kind that has wrecked many a championship. Halfback Hartman snatched a forward pass on to himself on the three yard line, and ran the length of the field for a touchdown and Campbell kicked goal. Bales and Dumm each made one more touchdown for their side, and an adding machine was brought on the field to add up the score.

HAROLD EBERT FORMER COACH C. A. C. DEAD

Passed Away At Des Moines,
Iowa--Funeral Services
Monday Afternoon.

Harold Ebert, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Ebert, of Ashville, died at a hospital in Des Moines, Iowa, Friday at 12:30 o'clock following a lingering illness.

The deceased was born in Ashville in 1898. After attending and graduating from Ohio university at Athens he took up athletic work, and for several seasons was coach for the basketball team of this city and also coached several college teams. He was connected with Drake university at Des Moines, Iowa, as coach when he passed away.

The remains will be brought to Ashville and will be removed to the home of his uncle, David H. Ebert. Services at the Lutheran church Ashville Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial in Reber Hill cemetery.

The deceased was a nephew of Fred J. Ebert and Mrs. Edward Crist and Miss Mattie Ebert, of North Court street, this city.

Havoc of Education

I am against all education. It makes women conceited and unkind. And it makes men dull and pedantic.—Fred-eric Harrison in 1904 to Lady Dorothy Nevill.

Base Metals and Gold

The idea of transmuting base metals into gold seems to have had its origin, long before the birth of Christ, in Arabia, where the study of chemistry was remarkably advanced in early days. Lead has been nearly always the metal chosen—as recently, by a professor of the University of Manchester—to be dealt with in this way. Mercury is the next best bet, but silver is highly recommended.

Men's Rights

Men's rights are a great deal of trouble to them. They assert them, and get them, and then they don't know what to do with them. A man's rights, half of them, are meant to give away. . . . The beatitude of your rights is, they are your benevolences. You can yield them, give them away. And the law of social unity is the law of assertion of a man's individuality as a benevolence for those that are round about him.—Henry Ward Beecher.

COMMENTS ON CLEANLINESS

Cleanliness of body was ever esteemed to proceed from a due reverence to God.—Bacon.

So great is the effect of cleanliness upon man that it extends even to his moral character.—Rumford.

Early rising and much bathing are profitable to keep a man in health and to increase his riches and wisdom.—Plato.

Optimists look forward to the virtual extinction of disease, but it will only be after the children are taught cleanly habits from the very first, brought up in clean houses and sent to clean school houses through clean streets.—Ellen H. Richards, "The Cost of Cleanliness."

Protect School Books

Cover the children's schoolbooks with either stiff paper or cloth so they will last the year and be in condition for the next in the family who will need to use them.

EQUINOXIAL TIME

This is the time of year when the days and nights are of equal length—the equinoxial period we call it.

Those periods come twice a year, one in the spring and one in the autumn and are usually accompanied by storms or extraordinary atmospheric disturbances and, consequently, we are looking for storms now.

The time of violent and sudden electric storms and cyclones and tornadoes is about over, in this section, at least for this year, but storm means in the scientist's dictionary, any unusual weather conditions. In certain localities the autumnal equinox is marked very frequently, by violent hurricanes and terrific electric storms, but in these localities more by heavy rainfall, usually cold and of long duration. The spring equinox very frequently brings us more violent disturbances because then we are approaching the season of storms, while in the autumn we are leaving them behind.

Nature's forces, as a rule, shift gears on the weather machine at the equinoxial periods and they frequently "scrape" considerably in getting from one season's speed to another.

We have more settled weather, speaking generally, after these equinoxial storm periods are passed. After the autumnal equinox we are scheduled to have our squaw winter and our Indian summer weather, the latter the most delightful and dependable weather in the whole year.—Washington C. H. Herald.

ATTORNEY

And Engineer Chosen to Represent City in Fight Against Citizens Telephone Co.'s Rate Increase.

At the meeting of Council last night Solicitor Weldon announced that he had appointed Beecher W. Waltermire, attorney at law, to represent the city in their objection to the increase of rates asked for by the Citizens Telephone Company, which appointment was confirmed by Council, as was also the appointment of Beeman Thomas, appraisal engineer to assist in the work.
Solicitor Weldon was requested to notify the Norfolk & Western Railway Company that the city was satisfied with the way said company had repaired their crossing at the intersection of Court and Huston streets.
Service Director Schneider reported to Council that the Chesapeake and Hocking Railroad Company is now paving Main street between their right of way and the river bridge and that said company was willing to pave Mound street at this time if the city Council is willing to have the work done now. This matter was left to the discretion of the Service Director and City Engineer.

FOLKSBURG ITEMS

It's Indian summer time in Folksburg, and you can go up to any high place now and look a long ways off thru the fall sunshine and see a rim of smoky hills that seems like they're riding something from you that's further on. The corn on the ridges is in the shock and the woods on the hillsides are all splashes of color. Even the crickets are chirping sort of mournful, like as if they're telling you that summer is over, and frosty nights are close at hand.

Jud Johnson has had to repaint the sign which has been in his front yard for two or three years, and which until the paint washed off, it said he had a cow and calf for sale. And it's been such a slow sale the sign now reads that he has two cows to sell.

Attorney Parks is to be the main speaker at some kind of a gathering over at Newport next Friday night, and is making extensive preparations for the same. He is particularly practicing on several local take-offs that he aims to make, and wants to act like they just came to him on the spur of the minute.

Mrs. Millie Hicks was up at the city last week visiting her married daughter. And while she was there her son-in-law took her around to see where he works so she could tell the people here what an important place he has. But it being Sunday, the watchman wouldn't let them in on account of not recognizing the name as anybody that worked there.

Will Deal, one of our realtors, got a considerable surprise the other day. And how it was he sold a lot to Eli Howard nearly a year ago, and now Eli has succeeded in selling it for over half as much as Will told him it would soon be worth.

Mrs. Milton Hall was visited for a few days last week by two of her cousins from the city. Knowing that they ranked tolerably high in the social order, she extended herself trying to entertain them on an elaborate scale. And she didn't hardly know what to think when they wrote back thanking her kindly, and saying they enjoyed themselves so much more than if she had gone to special trouble.

Turner Jones, one of our stock buyers, was talking recently that all of these radio sets which people are getting have made it mighty discouraging for a stock buyer. And the reason is that he has a hard time to get to anybody now before they've heard that the price of hogs has gone up.

Mrs. Hettie Thomas and Elmira Peek have been in some competition over which one of them would get to rent their spare bedroom to school teachers who have come in from the outside. But Mrs. Thomas finally won out on account of her room had the biggest looking glass.

It looks like Sidney Moon's bull dog is becoming more valuable to him all the time. As for instance, yesterday morning Sidney went out to the garage in a hurry and got in his machine to drive off, and the dog was there and started to raise such a commotion that Sidney investigated a little, and found that he had a flat tire.

As we stated previously, Mrs. Amanda Bell has been a little perplexed whether to give some of her old things to a rummage sale for her church, or sell them to the second-hand store and maybe buy herself a new dress. But she got to looking a long ways ahead and thinking that a hundred years from now she'd probably be benefitting more if she donated the things to the sale, which she did.

Miss Mellie Robbins got a letter yesterday from somebody who wasn't busy right then and thought he'd write to her. And after he started out that way, why Miss Robbins said she was too busy herself to read any further.

Sandy Atkins has been showing several people a patent lock which he has put on his flivver. And seems like the general opinion is that it was an unnecessary expense.

We wish to thank the public for their past patronage and will endeavor to always serve them with the best.

RECREATIONBALL GAME AT LANCASTER

Recreation ball was played on the Lancaster field Friday by the Rotarians of this city and Lancaster and it was the same old story, Lancaster won again, 31 to 18. This score was official.

The game played here several weeks ago was a humdinger, but the game played Friday at Lancaster was not so peppy. The stars of the local rotarians were Stanley Lewis, of the Farm bureau, and Paul Johnson, of the Circleville Watchman. Both made home runs and the last named made two. Runs were made by Lewis 2; Mitchell 2; J. C. Goeller Jr., 2; Ed Daley 1; Gilmore 1; Earl Lutz 2; Loren Lutz, 2; Karl Herrman 2; Johnson, 2; Willis, 2.

Home run John and Lewis are some batters and they saved the day. The flowery Jack Mitchell is some batter and the way he knocked the sphere around was a caution. He was the wonder of the Lancasterians.

The Lutz boys, father and son, surely can make hits and runs and they did not do half bad as third basemen and left fielders. Dad is as good as the kid when it comes to running bases.

John C. Goeller Jr., got the wind knocked out of his anatomy when one of the Lancaster boys tried to make first, he ran into Goeller and knocked him off his pins for a minute, but he was game and stayed in the play.

Charley Gilmore enters into the game with heart and soul and as second baseman he did yeoman work.

Karl Hermann is a superb center-fielder. He could, if he cared get a tryout with one of the major leagues but he is married now.

Ed Daley made some raw decision as an umpire and after Stanley Lewis had to leave they took him off and let him play shortstop. As he was sprinter he is a pronounced success.

A supper was given the visiting so long he got in one run. As a Rotarians at Reef's, the headquarters of the Kiwanis, and following the banquet, Charles Gilmore, proposed that a league of recreation ball players made up of Lancaster, Logan, Chillicothe, Washington C. H., and this city, of Rotarians players and that next season each city play two games. Circleville also challenged Lancaster to an indoor game at Circleville.

After some consideration, it was decided that volley ball would be a better game to play for the indoors, and this may get the attention of players this coming winter.

Herman Balthaser, of the Lancaster Rotarians, was heartily in favor of volley ball, which he said is a good game for indoors.

Mary, who is the baby sister of girls in college, looks forward with delight to their week-end visits home and devotes herself entirely to them at such times. Finally she rose and exclaimed: 'Now I am prayed up for four nights and we can visit.'

Keeps Cattle Away

Cattle will not allow young hazel, oak and most other trees and shrubs to survive in a pasture, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington, but the thorn-apple bushes will flourish because their sharp thorns keep away the browsing cattle.

This Hustling Age

Of course we are all the creatures of our age. The luxuries of yesterday become the needs of today. If we were suddenly transported into the days of our grandparents, we would find the manner of life unbearable. They traveled by stage or on foot, and arrived on time. Today the fastest express trains scarcely meet our needs, and we are continually seeking for faster means of transportation and communication.

City Dwellers Flat-Footed

The old Gaelic or Celtic languages of the people of Scotland and Ireland are still spoken in place of English in the south and west of Scotland, in parts of Wales and other places, but the great majority of the people of both Scotland and Ireland speak English. RODEO WILL SHOW AGAIN TWO NIGHTS

King Bros. wild west rodeo has been induced by the local lodge of Eagles to extend its engagement and instead of closing tonight will remain on Mason's show grounds Monday and Tuesday of next week. When this announcement was made at last night's performance the hundreds of people in the audience applauded generously.

The rodeo with its 65 horses, its herd of long horned Texas steers and its splendid cowboys and cowgirls has made a decided hit in Circleville. The show is good and thrilling and decidedly wholesome. It is really a wonderful exhibition of western sports; just as good, if not better, lot of folks say, than the rodeo that was given at the state fair in Columbus.

A matinee was given this afternoon. Tonight at 8:30 another performance will be given. Circleville folks are given a cordial invitation by Colonel King to visit the grounds Sunday afternoon and see the horses and cattle and meet personally the picturesque cowboys and charming cowgirls.

Benefit in Joy Giving
When you once get started in joy giving, it's easy to keep it up. The fact that you give joy, brings candidates for your magic touch constantly before you. The returning benefits of having given joy keep you supplied with the means of joy giving. So you just increase the ever enlarging stream that through you ministers to your fellows. And your own joy increases with each new expression of your good will. The joy-giving habit grows upon you and you would be perfectly miserable without the chance of helping others to happier days. It's real joy.—Grit.

BLACKSTONE.
The greatest magician the world has ever known will make an escape from a packing box made by the Circleville Lumber company and then nailed down by their carpenters at the Grand opera house Wednesday, October 5, and Mr. Gilliland defies Blackstone to escape from same after his men has made this box secure. Same is now on exhibition at the Ohio utilities office and may be examined at your leisure. This is just one of the many tricks that the Great Black stone will perform during his three day engagement in this city. Don't fail to see the great illusion "The Vanishing Horse" in the Oriental Nights and the many other mystifying tricks, with his big company of twenty people and a car load of special scenery and effects; October 3, 4, and 5.

AMUSEMENTS

Duplicating Chinese architecture, Chinese decorations, and other details of creating an exact duplicate of the mysterious Orient proved one of the strangest tasks of research ever encountered at a studio, when the spectacular settings for "Mr. Wu," Lon Chaney's new starring vehicle, coming Monday to the Met theater were created.

The experts in charge of the work before they could study Chinese architecture, had to study Chinese religion. This was necessary because every detail of Chinese building design hinges on the religion and superstitions of its people.

All architecture in China is on a triangular basis, representing the trinity of the Chinese religion, and the dragon, symbol of immortality, reaching toward the earth, is the basic principle of its decoration.

Chinese roofs always curl up at the eaves, that descending evil spirits may be caught on these chutes and turned upward into the air again. Strange walls, known as "spirit walls" are built on a certain formula to foil evil spirits.

William Nigh, who directed the new production at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and Chaney, the star, passed weeks in research with the technical department before the settings were constructed, and much of Chaney's delineation of the uncanny Chinese avenger in the dramatic story was gleaned from the same story.

Chaney plays a powerful mandarin of uncanny knowledge and power and the cast includes Louise Dresser, Renee Adoree, Ralph Forbes, Gertrude Olmsted, Anna May Wong, Mrs. Wong Wing, Holmes Herbert, Claude King and other noted players.

DIVISION OF LARGE STEVENSON ESTATE

The beginning of the last chapter of the division of the lands owned by the late Job E. Stevenson in Ross and Pickaway Counties as started last week when Lyle S. Evans, of Chillicothe, attorney for certain parties connected with the grand slicing of the large land estate.

The late Job Stevenson, who was married several times, and had a daughter who married the late Geo. W. Cable, author and writer of southern novels, and who is now deceased. Mrs. Cable being his second wife, left a large estate in Ohio lands and are now partitioned in accordance with the finding of the court, so that Geo. W. Cable, through the Hampshire Trust Company of North Hampton, Mass., with whom he left his estate for the benefit of his wife, when he died, will be given over 525 acres of land in Wayne Township, this county while Matilda E. Stevenson and Evelyn Stevenson and Mrs. E. S. Davis, mother of Minerva Stevenson, deceased, will inherit undivided one-third of 765 acres of rich farming land in Pickaway and Ross counties. SAHARA BLONDE RULES IN HAREM

Sheik Still Prefers Bride He Won at Cards Over 300 Brunettes.

Paris.—A bronzed sheik of the Sahara, who slipped into Paris to do a bit of shopping for his harem, recalled a choice bit of exotic romance.

A year or two before the big war El Glaoui, pasha of Marrakech in Morocco, came up to Vichy for a rest and met a rich Turk who proved to be an inveterate gambler. In three days El Glaoui cleaned out his corolligionist from Constantinople, down to his last piastre.

"I am sorry, my brother, but I have nothing more to play," the Turk exclaimed in despair.

"You have forgotten something, my friend," El Glaoui cooed, and his deep brown eyes sparkled as he pictured in his mind the Turk's young Circassian wife with blond hair and blue eyes who had thrown languorous glances at him through the slit in her teharchaf when he had gotten a passing glimpse of her that morning.

One Look Won the Pasha's Heart.

The Circassian's glance had set him on fire, as the Moroccan sheiks love the blond Mohammedan women from the Caucasus even more than do the Turks, and he was ready to sell his soul for her.

"I shall give you a chance to win all your money back," he whispered to the Constantinople brother, pushing $100,000 in golden Turkish pounds on the table. I shall bet it all on one cut of the cards against your wife."

The fat Turk was too passionate a gambler to resist, and with huge drops of perspiration rolling off his forehead, he drew a card:

"The three of spades," he gasped and the sheik smiled craftily.

El Glaoui, as cool as an oasis on his Sahara, drew his card.

"The ace of clubs," the Turk choked, and then he burst into sobs.

He sobbed so long and so bitterly that El Glaoui, who is quite a diplomat in his own way, found it almost impossible to console him.

She Chose the Winner.

"It was the will of Allah, my friend," he explained encouragingly, "but I shall fly in the face of Providence and give you another chance. We shall call your wife, explain the circumstances and tell her to choose between us. If she prefers to remain with you I shall give you both my blessing and go on my way. And if she prefers to go with me—"

The young Circassian beauty took only one look at her fat, greasy, busted and red-eyed husband and ten looks at the tall, masterful Moroccan sheik, holding the sack of gold. She blushing made a curtsy to the Pasha, stepped beside him and they walked out together.

"The peace of God be with you, friend," he said gravely to the Turk. "Peace with you," his ex-wife echoed.

The blonde knew her stuff, for she is still No. 1 wife in a harem of 300 brunettes, and that is going some after 14 years.

The Pasha comes up to Paris every summer to buy her silks and perfumes.

POLITICS AND STATISTICS

If anyone is disposed to suggest that that eminent statistician Mr. Babson, is going out of his field when he predicts that next year we shall see the election of a Republican President, but a Democratic Congress, and in 1932 of a Democratic President, it is only necessary to reply that, after all, the determination of an election is nothing but a matter of statistics anyway — merely counting the votes after they have been cast. The only novelty which Mr. Babson introduces into the affair, from the more usual viewpoint of his profession, is that of counting the votes beforehand.

In time we may reach the stage—perhaps, with due respect to Mr. Babson, we have reached it already—when we can thus plot our politics and when, if one curve representing the relative prosperity of the Western farmer happens to cross, at an appropriate time, another curve representing the intensity of the hunger pains of the Democrats who have been so long out of office, we may be sure that we are going to have a Democratic President—or that we aren't.—Springfield Republican.

Needles of Ancient Days

The needles that have come down to us from ancient Egypt are very coarse, but it is certain that finer needles must have been made to make the delicate embroidery produced by those people. Judging by the descriptions of embroidery in Homer, the Greeks also must have had very fine needles.

Two Church Designations

The word "protestant" includes many churches, the Protestant Episcopal and the Methodist Episcopal among them. The word "protestant" came into use at the time of the Reformation both in England and on the continent. It stood for a protest against the Roman Catholic church. The name is not particularly significant at this time when all of the churches are drawing closer together. —Brooklyn Eagle.

Vera Cruz

Vera Cruz has the unique record of having been twice captured by American forces, once in 1846 when we were at war with Mexico, and again in 1917, when we were not at war with Mexico. However, all we seem to do with it after we get it is to give it back again, so its citizens probably feel little worried at the vicissitudes of war. Indeed, they have recently raised a statue in honor of the noble defenders of Vera Cruz against the gringos, which shows that they feel they are adequately protected.

Onion Temperatures While in Storage

Bulb Is Subject to Freezing Injury in Transit.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Onions, one of the leading vegetable crops commonly held in storage, may under certain conditions undercool for a limited period below their freezing points without freezing, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Experiments conducted by the department at its cold storage laboratory at the Arlington Experimental Farm, Rosslyn, Va., show that the average freezing point of onions of the globe type is about 30 degrees F. When known to be at a temperature below their freezing point onions should not be moved or handled roughly as they are likely to freeze immediately. The freezing points and other temperature records were determined by the thermoelectric method.
The study was confined to non-norm-grown onions of the globe type, since the larger proportion of this crop is held in common storage in the northern states and therefore is frequently subject to freezing injury while in storage and in transit to market. Considerable variation was found among individual onions relative to the temperature to which they may be undercooled before freezing starts. One of the experiments was made to determine the length of time a bushel slat crate of onions could be held at low temperatures without injury.
Details concerning the tests and their results are given in Department Circular No. 415-C, "Some Effects of Freezing on Onions," just issued by the department. A copy of the new circular may be obtained free upon application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Rake Up and Burn Ali Rubbish in Onion Patch

Raking up and burning all rubbish in the onion patch or garden at this time of year is more important in insect control than any single measure that may be taken next spring or next summer, says F. E. Whitehead, entomologist of the Idaho university extension service.
"If weather conditions permit," Mr. Whitehead says, "this should be done at once. Rake up and burn rubbish of every variety, burn all weeds along fence rows and leave no place for the overwintering insects to live. The success of this method, like the success of other methods of insect control, depends upon thoroughness. The cleanup campaign should be as thorough as possible.
This practice is particularly important this year to growers of onions, according to Mr. Whitehead. Onion thrips have been doing damage to the Idaho crops for several years and have become steadily worse.

Most Effective Means to Control Corn Borer

One of the most effective means thus far discovered of controlling the spread of the European corn borer is to destroy the corn stalks and those of other plants in which the borers hibernate before emerging in the spring as moths. It is very necessary, however, to cut the stalks as close to the ground as possible, for it has been determined that as cool fall weather sets in the borers travel downward in the stalk. It is necessary also to cut the stalks as early as possible in order to capture most of the borers in the cut stalks and then kill them by ensiling, shredding the ears and stalks or burning the stalks.

Supreme as Soiling Crop

Among the various soiling crops, alfalfa stands supreme. If managed rightly, it will provide large yields of rich succulent feed throughout the entire summer. The first cutting is usually ready by late May or early June and, as a rule, at least three more cuttings can be secured at intervals of four to six weeks. Lyons and Haker of the Nebraska station found that they got double the yield from alfalfa as a soiling crop over that secured when it was pastured.

Agricultural Notes

Many a dollar is lost in the scrap heap of uncared for farm machinery.
Disking behind the binder saves moisture and makes fall plowing easier.
Farmers cannot afford to waste the farm manure by-product and then purchase commercial fertilizers.
Keep down the weeds in the garden. They steal moisture from the vegetables and harbor insect pests.
Some of our wheat fields have suffered considerably from smut this year because the seed was not treated or disinfected last fall.
There are still some farmers who do not appreciate that stinking smut or bunt of wheat can be controlled by disinfecting the seed with formalin.
The farmer who pulls fodder for roughage is making his hands compete with the mowing machine. If the machine cuts legume hays, it is saving a much better roughage than that of fodder which is harvested by hand.

To Duplicate Baby

One day while out walking I met little Grace, the daughter of a dressmaker, wheeling her little brother. After kissing the baby I asked Grace if I could keep it. "Oh, no," she answered, "but mother would lend you a paper pattern for one like him."—Illustrated News.

The prejudice about being the first occupiers of a new house is perhaps a dim recollection of our prehistoric ancestor's attitude toward a newly discovered cave. There might be wild beasts already in occupation.

All in Green Gowns

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"AND so you are wearing green?" remarked Ella Neilson as she looked at Kathleen's new dress for the party.

"Yes, you know it is my favorite color—perhaps I rather fancy it because my eyes are green."

"Are they green?" inquired her friend coolly. "I always thought they were grayish blue."

"No, indeed," laughed the other girl. "Mother has bought me a string of jade green beads—pretty, aren't they?"

"Lovely," murmured Ella indifferently, and presently she made some excuse and hurried on, but she did not go home then. She went to call upon several other girls of their set, and there was much laughter and giggling.

As for Kathleen, while she felt hurt about Ella Neilson's indifference, she did diagnose the case correctly. "I am afraid that Ella is a little jealous about my wearing the green dress," she told her mother that evening.

"You must not mind that, my dear," smiled her mother. "I am sure that Ella will wear a pretty frock and by that time she will have quite forgotten her jealousy. Did she ask you anything about Frederick?"

Kathleen shook her head. "I think that she was so upset about my dress that she never thought of my escort!"

"And she will take it for granted that Frederick will take her, as usual?"

"I suppose so, mother. I hope she finds it out before Thursday, though!"

Ella Neilson did find it out on Wednesday and she was furiously angry with both Frederick and Kathleen. She had met the young man near the town hall and she made the fatal mistake of taking it for granted that Frederick would be her cavalier as he had been several times in the past.

"What time will you come for me, Fred?" she asked when they were parting, and he had not mentioned the party.

"Ella Neilson!" he chided, trying to wipe his embarrassment, "you know perfectly well that I am not coming to escort you to the party! Please do not tease a young man with political cares upon his shoulders!"

Ella smiled widely, nervously, and turned away. "That's a good joke on you, Frederick!" she giggled, and went on, and Frederick, guessing her chagrin, and feeling somewhat guilty, went on his way, and in the midst of an important piece of work forgot all about Ella Neilson, though he did have a minute now and then to devote to Kathleen, who had quite stolen his heart.

That afternoon Ella Neilson called up several of her masculine friends at their places of business, and after several failures at last received an invitation from George Moore. "I am going in my car," he said, "and I'd like to take you, Ella—sure that I'm not butting in on Fred—or anything like that?"

"Very sure," said Ella sweetly, "and thank you so much, George. I will be ready at eight o'clock."

One of the queer things about the party that night was that eight o'clock sounded and went by and very few girls arrived.

There was the usual stag line of unattached young men, and there were some girls and their escorts. Pretty girls and plain girls in pink and yellow and blue and a few in white or black.

At a quarter after eight Ella Neilson arrived with George Moore, and she looked like a rose in a charming pink dress, and then in groups or by ones and twos came the other girls of her particular "crowd" and every girl wore green! Every shade of green, silk, satin, or georgette in combination with another color was represented, and there was much laughter, while Ella Neilson was here, there, and everywhere in her rose-pink dress, like one lovely rose in a plain green garden of girls!

And then, just a little later, came Kathleen with Frederick Warner—Kathleen was all in green, too, but her dress was somehow "different" from the others—it was a beautiful shade of green, and she wore an odd string of jade beads.

"How odd that so many should wear green!" she confided to Fred as they danced. "Of course it is worn a lot—but our whole crowd is wearing green, all except Ella. Doesn't she look adorable in the pink?"

Frederick had keenly observed Ella Neilson, but he merely said: "Looks like a peony! Kathleen, you are like a cool green rush growing in a quiet pool."

Kathleen blushed adorably and smiled at him. "There are so many of us green rushes, Frederick—I am afraid we are like the wild flags in the creeks!"

"Never mind," he only whispered. "Among them all, Kathy, there is just one green. You!"

When the evening was over, and Frederick and Kathleen walked home under the early morning moon, it was then that Frederick confessed to Kathleen that he did not like any other girl except her—and he came out in just the way that all happily ending love stories do! As for Ella Neilson—it was something of a tragedy for her when she fell in love and married a man by the name of Green!

TEMPERANCE WOMEN HELD CONVENTION

County Organizations Met In This City and Interesting Program Was Given.

The thirty-seventh annual convention of the Pickaway county W. C. T. U., was held in the Methodist Episcopal church in Circleville.

Mrs. Lucy B. Price, our very efficient county president, presided and the following program was carried out: Song service was conducted by the county director, Mrs. Alma Boor; greetings by Mrs. Lulu Marion, president of Circleville union; Miss Hazel F. Morgan responded.

The reports of county officers and directors showed very good work had been done all over the county.

Williamsport reported 60 members in this L. T. L. and New Holland 51.

Corresponding secretary of Ohio W. C. T. U., Mrs. H. D. VanKirk, was then introduced and she paid our own Mrs. Dunlap a lovely tribute and brought greetings from the state officers.

Election of county officers resulted in the election of the following: Mrs. Lucy B. Price, county president; Miss Mary Porter, vice president; Mrs. Bessie Long, recording secretary; Mrs. Adda Prushing, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Abbie Gussman, treasurer.

Noontide prayer by Mrs. Lillian Downs. Everyone enjoyed the social noon hour and box lunch.

Executive meeting was held at 1 o'clock and the following directors of the different departments elected:

Branch secretary, Y. P. B., Mrs. Bessie Long; L. T. L., Mrs. Mary Crites, both of Circleville; musical director, Mrs. Alma Boor, Ashville; pianist, Mrs. Mary Bond, Kingston; anti-narcotics, Mrs. Mary Dunlap, Circleville; child welfare, Miss Mary Harpster, Kingston; Christian citizen ship, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Williamsport; medal contests, Mrs. Abbie Gussman, Circleville; evangelistic, Mrs. Elizabeth Wright, Ashville; flower mission and relief, Mrs. Mary H. Wall, Circleville; peace and international arbitration, Mrs. John Seaburn, Williamsport; publicity, Mrs. Delphene Cromley, Ashville; prison reform, Mrs. Abbie Gussman, Circleville; Sabbath observance, Mrs. Mary Gray, Atlanta; scientific temperance instruction, Mrs. Lulu Kirkpatrick, New Holland; social morality, Mrs. Ada E. VanVickle, Ashville; soldiers' and sailors' Mrs. Mary S. Rife, Circleville; Sunday school, Mrs. Jennie Stump, Derby; temperance and missions, Mrs. Pearl Adkins, Atlanta; Bible in public schools, Mrs. Cora Parks, Mt. Sterling.

Afternoon Session. Song service; devotionals, Mrs. Della Hay; memorial service by President, Mrs. Price and Secretary Mrs. Long.

Fifteen members in the county have entered eternal rest during the year.

Miss Mary Porter gave glimpses of the National convention and everyone voted this a fine report.

Mrs. H. D. VanKirk then gave a splendid address. She urged every woman to deem it her duty to go to the polls and vote. Let us educate our children thru S. T. I work so they may know how to vote. The pupils of today are the voters of tomorrow. Thus closed a very profitable convention with the largest attendance of any convention in the past. Every woman should make an effort to attend the county conventions and institute for they are a real inspiration.

The ladies of the county presented their president, Mrs. Lucy B. Price, a beautiful silver tray as a token of the love and esteem in which she is held by the W. C. T. U. women of the county. The convention closed by singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

And then, just a little later, came Kathleen with Frederick Warner. Kathleen was all in green, too, but her dress was somehow "different" from the others—it was a beautiful shade of green, and she wore an odd string of jade beads.

"How odd that so many should wear green!" she confided to Fred as they danced. "Of course it is worn a lot—but our whole crowd is wearing green, all except Ella. Doesn't she look adorable in the pink?"

Frederick had keenly observed Ella Neilson, but he merely said: "Looks like a peony! Kathleen, you are like a cool green rush growing in a quiet pool."

Kathleen blushed adorably and smiled at him. "There are so many of us green rushes, Frederick—I am afraid we are like the wild flags in the creeks!"

"Never mind," he only whispered. "Among them all, Kathy, there is just one green. You!"

When the evening was over, and Frederick and Kathleen walked home under the early morning moon, it was then that Frederick confessed to Kathleen that he did not like any other girl except her—and "I came out in just the way that all happily ending love stories do! As for Ella Neilson—it was something of a tragedy for her when she fell in love and married a man by the name of Green!"

TEMPERANCE WOMEN HELD CONVENTION

County Organizations Met In This City and Interesting Program Was Given.

The thirty-seventh annual convention of the Pickaway county W. C. T. U., was held in the Methodist Episcopal church in Circleville.

Mrs. Lucy B. Price, our very efficient county president, presided and the following program was carried out: Song service was conducted by the county director, Mrs. Alma Boor; greetings by Mrs. Lulu Marion, president of Circleville union; Miss Hazel F. Morgan responded.

The reports of county officers and directors showed very good work had been done all over the county.

Williamsport reported 60 members in this L. T. L. and New Holland 51. Corresponding secretary of Ohio W. C. T. U., Mrs. H. D. VanKirk, was then introduced and she paid our own Mrs. Dunlap a lovely tribute and brought greetings from the state officers.

Election of county officers resulted in the election of the following: Mrs. Lucy B. Price, county president; Miss Mary Porter, vice president; Mrs. Bessie Long, recording secretary; Mrs. Adda Prushing, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Abbie Gussman, treasurer.

Noontide prayer by Mrs. Lillian Downs. Everyone enjoyed the social noon hour and box lunch.

Executive meeting was held at 1 o'clock and the following directors of the different departments elected:

Branch secretary, Y. P. B., Mrs. Bessie Long; L. T. L., Mrs. Mary Crites, both of Circleville; musical director, Mrs. Alma Boor, Ashville; pianist, Mrs. Mary Bond, Kingston; anti-narcotics, Mrs. Mary Dunlap, Circleville; child welfare, Miss Mary Harpster, Kingston; Christian citizen ship, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Williamsport; medal contests, Mrs. Abbie Gussman, Circleville; evangelistic, Mrs. Elizabeth Wright, Ashville; flower mission and relief, Mrs. Mary H. VanVickle, Ashville; soldiers' and sailors' Mrs. Mary S. Rife, Circleville; Sunday school, Mrs. Jennie Stump, Derby; temperance and missions, Mrs. Pearl Adkins, Atlanta; Bible in public schools, Mrs. Cora Parks, Mt. Sterling.

Afternoon Session. Song service; devotionals, Mrs. Della Hay; memorial service by President, Mrs. Price and Secretary Mrs. Long.

Fifteen members in the county have entered eternal rest during the year.

Miss Mary Porter gave glimpses of the National convention and everyone voted this a fine report.

Mrs. H. D. VanKirk then gave a splendid address. She urged every woman to deem it her duty to go to the polls and vote. Let us educate our children thru S. T. I work so they may know how to vote. The pupils of today are the voters of tomorrow. Thus closed a very profitable convention with the largest attendance of any convention in the past. Every woman should make an effort to attend the county conventions and institute for they are a real inspiration.

The ladies of the county presented their president, Mrs. Lucy B. Price, a beautiful silver tray as a token of the love and esteem in which she is held by the W. C. T. U. women of the county. The convention closed by singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

Distance Lure

I have heard it said of a great painting, "Don't go too close to it." In order to get the best out of a picture view it in the proper light and from a distance. If you got too close to look you will realize the rough way in which it is made. . . . "I prefer (now) to also view women from a distance; never closer than four or five feet.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.
